

WEEKLY MARKET PRICE

07-2025

- New York cotton futures fell to 65.01 cents per pound before experiencing a slight rebound, driven by weak U.S. export sales, particularly to China.
- The Indian fiber and yarn market remained stable in the past week, with minor price increases in polyester and viscose yarn while cotton yarn was unchanged.
- India's cotton yarn export prices saw minor declines over the past week, with most categories reflecting slight downward adjustments.
- China's cotton yarn imports continued their slow decline, reflecting subdued demand.
- PTA prices have rebounded in response to a series of upcoming maintenance shutdowns across key production facilities, tightening supply at a time when cost pressure from upstream crude oil and paraxylene remains elevated.
