

WEEKLY MARKET PRICE 12-2025

- Cotton prices in New York have rebounded in recent sessions, driven by a combination of macroeconomic and industry-specific factors.
- Cotton yarn prices in China remained mostly stable over the past week but are at risk of softening further as cotton fiber prices begin to decline. Spinners have been cautious with their purchases amid weak downstream demand, limiting the potential for any price recovery.
- Cotton yarn prices in Pakistan continued to decline last week due to reduced demand and a decrease in cotton fiber prices.
- India's cotton yarn export prices showed slight upward trends over the past week, with increases in carded and combed cotton varieties.
- Polyester staple fiber (PSF) prices have continued to decline, particularly in India and Pakistan. Polyester filament yarn (PFY) prices also trended lower, affected by both weak demand and falling intermediate costs.
